Rites at Home Of Daughter

Mrs. Elizabeth Roane Valentine Dies at 90

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Roane Valentine, 90, widow of Richard Frederick Valentine, who died early yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John C. Bowers, 2901 Grove Avenue, were to be held at 4:30 P. M. today at the residence, with the Rev. Henry G. Lane, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, officiating, and with interment in Hollywood Cemetery.

Mrs. Valentine, who was a member of an old and widely related Virginia family, was born June 8, 1849, and was a daughter of Judge James Eppes Roane and Jane Booker Roane, of "Center Farm," Charles City County. The family is one long conspicuous in the cultural and social life of the State. A brother of Mrs. Valentine was Dr. John Junius Roane, of "Bush Hill," Charles City County.

Shortly after the outbreak of the War Between the States Mrs. Valentine's parents established their home in Richmond, residing for many years on Church Hill, not far from historic St. John's Church, which the family attended.

Her husband, Richard Frederick Valentine, whose death occurred many years ago, served in the Confederate Army with the Otey Battery, Artillery Corps, Army of Northern Virginia, and after the close of the war entered business here as a member of the firm of Valentine and Roane.

In past years Mrs. Valentine had been a communicant of St. John's Church, but in later years, while making her home with her daughter, on Grove Avenue, had been a member of St. Mark's Church, on the Boulevard.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Bowers, of this city, and Mrs. Charles P. Harris, of Charlottesville; one granddaughter, Mrs. Newton Priddy, of Ashland, a daughter of her late son, Richard Roane Valentine, and a great-granddaughter, Bettie Roane Priddy, of Ashland.

Mrs. Sarah M. Boyce

Elizabeth City, N. C., Nov. 9.—Mrs. Sarah Margaret Boyce, 78, widow of John T. Boyce, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. Frank Jennings, 107 East Cypress street, yesterday at 10:30 p. m., after a long illness. Mrs. Boyce was a native of Gates County, the daughter of David and Sarah Hobbs, of Hobbsville, and had resided with her daughter here several years. She was a member of Blackwell Memorial Baptist Church.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. J. E. Jordan, of Camden; Mrs. Jennings and Mrs. Shelton Hales, of Elizabeth City, and Mrs. C. E. Morgan, of Berkley, Va.; one son, J. E. Boyce, of Gatesville; four sisters, Mrs. H. L. Powell, of Norfolk; Mrs. Bettie P. Eure, of Hertford; Mrs. J. C. Dail, of Edenton, and Mrs. S. P. Matthews, of Burgess; one brother, J. D. Hobbs, of Tyner; 12 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home of Mrs. Jennings Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. J. L. White, pastor of Blackwell Memorial Church. Burial will be in Corinth Church Cemetery.

Judge Wells, who was a native of Chesterfield County and a son of the late Leonidas and Mrs. Virginia Alice Cogbill Wells, had long been widely known in this section of Virginia as a member of the bar and as a jurist and leading citizen and churchman.

He was born Jan. 4, 1869, at the home of his parents, in Chesterfield, in which county his father was well known as a veteran of the Confederate Army and lumber manufacturer. Judge Wells' grandfather, Baker Wells, had moved to this State from Kentucky and it was he who established the home in Chesterfield County.

In his young manhood Judge Wells served in turn as a deputy clerk of the County Court of Chesterfield and of the Circuit Court. He "read law," as was the custom of the time, under the direction of P. V. Cogbill with whom he formed a law partnership later with offices at Chesterfield Courthouse and in Manchester. He also took the summer law course under Professor John B. Minor, at the University of Virginia, who was nationally known as one of the great teachers of his generation.

He was admitted to the Virginia bar in 1891 and shortly was elected

He was admitted to the Virginia bar in 1891 and shortly was elected Commonwealth's Attorney of Chesterfield County, which office he filled for almost the entire four-year term, resigning, however, to form the partnership with Mr. Cogbill.

After the death of Judge William I. Clopton, which occurred in 1909, Governor Claude A. Swanson appointed Mr. Wells as judge of the Hustings Court of the city of Manchester, and when that city became a part of Richmond, in 1910, he became judge of the Hustings Court of Richmond, Part II, which position he continued to fill with distinction until his death.

Judge Wells was a member of Dove Lodge, No. 51, A. F. and A. M., also of the Order of Elks and of the Junior Order United American Mechanics.

For many years he had been an influential figure in the councils of the Democratic party in this section of the State, and in past years, while a practicing attorney, served as chairman of the Democratic Committee for the City of Manchester.

He had long been a prominent layman of the Methodist Church, and for some years taught a Bible class in the Central Methodist Church.

Native of Stafford.

He was born on Feb. 24, 1861, at "Chelsea," Stafford County, and was a son of the late George Vowles Moncure and Mrs. Mary Ashby Moncure.

The Moncure family of Virginia is one tracing its descent from the Rev. John Moncure, a native of the parish of Kinoff, County Kincardine, Scotland, and in still earlier generations descended from French Huguenot ancestors.

The Rev. John Moncure came to Virginia in the early years of the eighteenth century and was the rector of historic Aquia Church, Overwharton Parish, Stafford County. His death occurred in 1764 and he was buried beneath the chancel of the old Stafford County Church.

This widely known minister of an older day had married Frances Brown, a daughter of Dr. Gustavus Brown, of Maryland, and John and Frances Brown Moncure were to become the founders in Virginia of a notable family.

James Ashby Moncure as a youth was a pupil at the private schools of the time in Stafford County and later attended the Fredericksburg Military Academy.

In his very early manhood he was for two years in the employ of J. B. Ficklen & Sons, merchant millers in Fredericksburg, before establishing his residence, in 1882, in Richmond.

Engages In Business Here.

In this city his first business connection was with the firm of H. M. Smith & Co., but in February, 1883, he became associated with the late J. C. Shafer, who was also a leading businessman of an older day here. He was for several years associated with Mr. Shafer and served as an executor of that gentleman's estate.

From 1892 until his retirement in 1924 Mr. Moncure was vice president of the Richmond Guano Company, of which he had been a founder.

His business connections had been numerous and he had from time to time served on the board of directors of several of this city's banks and industrial firms.

In 1915 Mr. Moncure was named as one of the directors of the newly established Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond and he was for eight years designated a deputy Federal reserve agent for this district.

In past years Mr. Moncure had taken an active part in the social life of Richmond as a member of the Richmond German and also of the Westmoreland Club, of which he was a former president.

He was also a member of the Sons of the Revolution and of other patriotic organizations.

For many years a devoted member of St. James Episcopal Church, Mr. Moncure at the time of his death was a member of its vestry and treasurer of the church.

He married, on Oct. 28, 1897, Miss Maria Gray, who is a member of one of Richmond's oldest families. Mrs. Moncure, who survives her husband, is a daughter of the late Herbert and Sue Flippen Gray

Mrs. Michaux Dies at Home

Wife of Physician Ill for Long Time

Mrs. Martha Whitehead Michaux, wife of Dr. Stuart N. Michaux, and a member of an old and widely related Virginia family, died this morning after a long illness at her home, Beaumont, Hampton Hills.

The funeral services will be held at 9:30 A. M. Wednesday at the residence and will be conducted by the Rev. Giles B. Palmer, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, and the Rev. J. J. Scherer, Jr., D. D., pastor of the First English Lutheran Church. Interment will be in Lynchburg.

The active pallbearers will be Mrs. Michaux's nephews, Carter Whitehead, Thomas Whitehead, II, Henry Whitehead, Craig Hunter, Edward Baird, II, and Thomas W. Murrell, Jr.

Mrs. Michaux, the former Miss Martha Garland Whitehead, was a daughter of Colonel Thomas Whitehead, C. S. A., and Martha Henry Garland. Her family is one established in Virginia in the early years of the eighteenth century and tracing its descent from John Whitehead, who was born in 1735 in New Kent County, and about 1760 made his home in Amherst.

Colonel Thomas Whitehead, the father of Mrs. Michaux, was born in Nelson County and later moved to Amherst County, where he became a leading member of the Virginia Bar.

He was still later an outstanding citizen of Lynchburg where he was widely known both as a lawyer and as an editor of marked ability. Colonel Whitehead was a member of Congress from Virginia in the decade following the close of the War Between the States and was State Commissioner of Agriculture from 1887 to 1901 in which last year his death occurred.

Mrs. Martha Garland Whitehead, the mother of Mrs. Michaux, was also a member of a prominent Virginia family and was a daughter of Samuel M. Garland, of Amherst, who was a member of the Virginia Secession Convention in 1861.

Mrs. Michaux had for many years been prominent in the social and civic life of Richmond. During the World War she gave much of her time to the various activities of that period in Richmond.

She was one of the founders and the first president of the Housewives League and had served as a member of the executive committee of the Richmond Recreational Association.

She was also one of the organizers here of the Tuckahoe Garden Club, of which she was president, and in which she worked untiringly in behalf of a movement for roadside beautification.

Mrs. Michaux was a communicant of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church and held membership in the Society of Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The active pallbearers will be Mrs. Michaux's nephews, Carter Whitehead, Thomas Whitehead, II, Henry Whitehead, Craig Hunter, Edward Baird, II, and Thomas W. Murrell, Jr.

Mrs. Michaux, the former Miss Martha Garland Whitehead, was a daughter of Colonel Thomas Whitehead, C. S. A., and Martha Henry Garland. Her family is one established in Virginia in the early years of the eighteenth century and tracing its descent from John Whitehead, who was born in 1735 in New Kent County, and about 1760 made his home in Amherst.

Colonel Thomas Whitehead, the father of Mrs. Michaux, was born in Nelson County and later moved to Amherst County, where he became a leading member of the Virginia Bar.

He was still later an outstanding citizen of Lynchburg where he was widely known both as a lawyer and as an editor of marked ability. Colonel Whitehead was a member of Congress from Virginia in the decade following the close of the War Between the States and was State Commissioner of Agriculture from 1887 to 1901 in which last year his death occurred.

Mrs. Martha Garland Whitehead, the mother of Mrs. Michaux, was also a member of a prominent Virginia family and was a daughter of Samuel M. Garland, of Amherst, who was a member of the Virginia Secession Convention in 1861.

Mrs. Michaux had for many years been prominent in the social and civic life of Richmond. During the World War she gave much of her time to the various activities of that period in Richmond.

She was one of the founders and the first president of the Housewives League and had served as a member of the executive committee of the Richmond Recreational Association.

She was also one of the organizers here of the Tuckahoe Garden Club, of which she was president, and in which she worked untiringly in behalf of a movement for roadside beautification.

Mrs. Michaux was a communicant of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church and held membership in the Society of Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

She married Dr. Stuart N. Michaux, a member of an old Richmond family and widely-known physician, who survives his wife.

Besides her husband she is also survived by four sisters, Mrs. John D. Murrel, Mrs. Mary W. Schneider, Mrs. Henry D. Perkins and Mrs. Theodore Hough, and by a brother, Thomas Whitehead, of Amherst.

Joe Wheeler's Daughter: Nurse in Three Wars

By MRS. W. M. HOLLIMAN

Lawrence County, Ala.

● In lieu of a fiction story this month we present two true short stories: (1) the remarkable true story of a famous war-nurse as reported in our "Most Interesting Person" contest, and (2) the inspiring story of a Southern farm family's present-day progress on page 38.

IN A beautiful colonial mansion in the lovely Tennessee Valley in Lawrence County, Ala., will be found the most useful person I know, the dearly beloved Miss Annie Wheeler. Daughter of the famous "Fighting Joe" Wheeler, famous first as a Confederate cavalry leader and later as general in the Spanish-American War, she is a worthy daughter of so great a father.

She is constantly busy in every conceivable way, helping the poor and needy not only on her own estate but any who are sick or in distress—with food, medicine, caskets for the dead, glasses for boys and girls with defective eyes, the expenses of hospital bills for any who need operations. She is especially interested in paralytic children and has furnished many of them with proper braces. Crippled adults far and near are also remembered by her with free hospital service, artificial limbs, or other needed service. When she sees some once-handicapped boy or girl able to walk again, it is then her happiness overflows!

Churches and schools, both in her own community and beyond it, and both white and colored, have received large donations from her and she has paid teachers and sponsored courses in home economics. She is admired not only for services rendered to others, but for her love and devotion to her father and mother and her unselfish and untiring service rendered for many months to her hopelessly ill sister.

Besides her service to humanity here in her own country, she has rendered wartime service in three wars—in Cuba, in the Philippine insurrection, and in France and Germany during World War I. When her father, General Joe Wheeler, sailed for the battlefield of Cuba, her greatest desire was to accompany Olivette. On reaching Santiago, not being immune to yellow fever, she was forbidden to land, but finally, through her persistence, she was allowed to enter service as a nurse. She was first assigned to the bedside of her brother, then transferred to a hospital where she had charge of 90 patients. There, as physician, nurse, and spiritual comforter of all the sick and dying, she was known as "The Angel of Santiago." No one will ever know the horrors she endured in the hospital camps.

When she sailed for France to serve as a Red Cross nurse, the ship on which she sailed was chased by a submarine but escaped injury. She landed safely in the battle zone, where her loving voice, smiling face, and willing hands helped soothe the pains of 2,000 soldiers entrusted to her care. On Miss Wheeler's mantel is a framed letter written by one of these French soldiers whom she nursed to health after both his hands had been shot off. She taught him to write by holding a pencil in the bandage of his stub and on Christmas Day he wrote her this message: "Someone far from harbor you have guided across the bar."

Editor's Note.—Nearly all our readers have heard old people talk of "Little Joe Wheeler" and his famous Confederate cavalry. Only 5 feet 5 inches high, Wheeler was made a major general in the Confederate Army at 26 . . . and in 1898 when 62 years old, became a major general in the United States Army in the war with Spain. His own amazing courage and genius lend added interest to this story of his hardly less courageous and gifted daughter.
